Spring 2009

To EDMC Education Foundation Friends:

While reviewing the scholarship applications and essays for the first quarter of 2009, I was struck by a recurring theme. Over and over I read "I am the first person in my family to attend college." As I read on, I realized why these students value higher education in their lives. All of them have an undying passion for their area of study. They have a vision for their future already imagined, and with dedication, hard work, and determination, believe they can achieve that future.

Those same students also spoke of financial challenges at home, often juggling full time work with a heavy load of coursework. But the overriding theme in all of the essays can be summed up in the words of one student showcased on this page: "You can achieve anything you put your mind to if you love it enough."

Thank you, donors and volunteers, for helping these students realize their potential and their dreams.

Sincerely,

Daniel A. Levinson, President
EDMC Education Foundation

not art or design, she was great at both those endeavors. It was the programming class! Used to doing well in both tactile and digital arts, she felt devastated when she found she had failed her Principles of Programming class. "Oddly enough, I really enjoyed the professor. So I gave myself the 'snap out of it, you can do this' pep talk, and took the class over again."

To ensure success this time, Ramona is doing things differently. She is asking for help from classmates and peers. "My tendency is to rely on myself. I've always studied alone. This had to change. The moment I knew I'd failed, I set the gears in motion to secure a reliable tutor who I could understand and not feel embarrassed with. I have also recruited the help of my Ai-buddy, who is currently taking Principles of Programming. Maybe I can even extend a little help to classmates who feel that they are sinking."

If the great recommendations from her instructors are any indication, sounds like Ramona's "can do" persistence is paying off.

Audrey Clark,
Fashion Marketing
Student, The Art
Institute of Seattle

One day, Audrey shares, her aunt, an immigrant from Scotland, sat her down and told her that it was never too late to change her life. Audrey promised her aunt that she would enroll in school and follow her heart.

Though it took her a few more years, at the age of 30 Audrey established herself in the Fashion

The David Skibbo Memorial Scholarship at The Illinois Institute of Art-Schaumburg Helps Keep Students in School

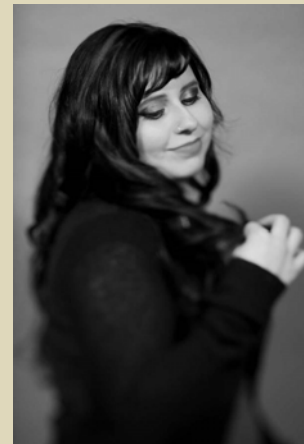

In spite of the economic downturn and students struggling to stay in school, Eugene Goldstien, among several ILIS students to receive EDMC Education Foundation Scholarships this year, can continue his education--thanks to the generosity of contributors to a very special scholarship.

The David Skibbo Memorial Scholarship was founded in 2008 by friends, fellow students, faculty, and family of David Skibbo, a beloved student who passed away this past year. The criteria for the scholarship included the student's ability to communicate, in a personal essay, passion for his or her chosen field of study. Below, we include an excerpt from Eugene's personal essay. Eugene received a scholarship award of $3,000!

"Ever since I was a young boy, I have dreamed of one day becoming a great animator. My parents instilled in me a feeling of confidence that made me remember that if I put in the effort and worked hard towards my goal, my dreams would one day come true...I am working towards my goal to see my name on a title card of an animated series.

I enrolled in the Illinois Institute of Art-Schaumburg, hoping that the college experience would help me to better achieve my dream. During my time spent here, I have increased my skills as an artist and an animator by ten-fold. Being surrounded by other creative people and the buzz of ideas has given me the boost I needed to achieve success. This past year, I accepted my first award at Artimation 9, a Digital Arts Festival. This award lifted my spirits, and helped me believe that I can achieve my goal if I work hard and study harder.

Marketing Program at The Art Institute of Seattle. Now she is working towards her life's goal: starting an Event Planning and Production business in the fashion industry, focusing on fundraising for charities. And although her aunt passed away recently, she continues to demonstrate that "I can continue to grow in a world without limits if I make my own change along the way."

Julianne Duncan, Photography Student, The Art Institute of Seattle

Julianne Duncan believes that a photograph can change the world. "A single image can be so powerful and truly change you as a person. It can put life in a completely different perspective. I want to be a person whose work makes you think about your life, and inspires you to help others and the world."

Julianne was raised in Las Vegas, Nevada and moved to Seattle to pursue her career in photography by attending The Art Institute of Seattle. Leaving Las Vegas was difficult, she says, because she has a very closely knit family. But, in Seattle, Julianne's passion for photography distracts her at every street corner and her intense interest in the details of life keep her going towards her goal. "I truly believe that anyone and Financing my education imposes quite a bit of strain on me, balancing a job, class work, and school projects. Sometimes I find myself with little time for my animation work. With this scholarship, I will be able to spend more time on my artistic work, and less time worrying about how to pay my bills. Thank you, family and friends of the David Skibbo Memorial Scholarship!"

everyone can make a difference in the world, you just have to believe in yourself and not give up. I'm very thankful for everything in my life, and want to give back to others who are less fortunate. I want to use my passion for photography and do something good for the world with my photographs."

Julianne plans to join the Peace Corps when she graduates, and then focus on creating a documentary.

John Lee, Graphic Design Student, The Art Institute of Seattle

John Lee knows what it is like to work hard for what he believes in. His parents immigrated from South Korea shortly before he and his sister were born. "My parents worked two jobs each, while taking turns watching over us. As a child, all I knew was that I had a loving family and that was all that mattered. When I got older, I realized how hard my parents worked for us."

In school, John always strived to do well. "As a child, it was ingrained in me that education was of the utmost importance. Once I discovered my artistic gift, I had a sense of purpose. I realized I had to prioritize all aspects of my life. Affecting change, to me, entails positive action. That includes understanding and utilizing my gifts, contributing to society, and

When John is in a position to do so, he wants to give back to his community. "I have promised myself to help out fellow minority groups by doing community service through designing artwork for non-profits and participating in mentorships for disadvantaged youth. Hopefully I will inspire others to fight for their dreams and to know that they can achieve anything if they put their minds to it."

Two Students at Brown Mackie College-Findlay Receive $500 Scholarships

Christina Frankforther, better known as Frankie, devotes her full strength and determination to achieve her goal: to graduate as an honor student from the Surgical Technology program at Brown Mackie College-Findlay Ohio. So far, she maintains her status of honor student, in spite of a year fraught with personal illness, the serious illness of her 5 year old daughter, and financial struggles.

home and at school, is a success. As I tell my daughter, 'You can do anything you want in life and don't let anyone ever tell you that you can't!' " One of Christina's instructors writes "Christina is a great student who has overcome many difficulties without complaining and looks at her education as a privilege." This is truly a recipe for success!

Diane Hawkins came to Brown Mackie College-Findlay to achieve a career dream. "The BMC experience is my stepping stone to change both my life as well as others. I hope to one day become a CRNA (Certified Registered Nurse Anesthetist). I have confidence that I can do anything I put my mind to. I started school in July of 2008 with no car, or job, or money. But I believe I have great leadership qualities--honesty, dependability, and diligence, all of which will be sure to help me in a nursing career."

Most of all, Diane gets involved. She volunteers at her church in the Healthcare Ministry. There she works as a nurse and helps church members who become ill, under the supervision of the church's RN. She also belongs to the Nursing Club at school, and is an active member of the Diversity Club. "My future looks great," Diane shares, "and I am happy with where I am going. This is an awesome beginning in my career as a nurse!"
